No other business man has greater need of a first-class team than the farmer, no other has so good an opportunity to get and keep a first-class team. Still the farm teams of the country are not a credit to the profession. says H. P. Mitler in Indiana Farmer. It is a version of the truth expressed in the adage. "The shoemakers' wife goes barefooted." With the variety and abundance of feed upon our farms our horses generally show neglect and unwise care. Farmers generally do not know that the horse's stomach normally holds only three gallons and they attempt to crowd a two bushel basket of hay into him and then allow him to drink four or five gallons of water upon top of it. The horse of all animals, except the hog, needs concentrated food. He should never be compelled to live upon hay nor should he be fed more at one time than he will eat up in thirty minutes. Even less than that at morning and noon feeds, when at hard work. This should be preceded by watering, but should be given before feeding grain. A light feed with time to digest it, is better than a heavy one without time for digestion. Let the heaviest feed of the day be given at the close of the day's work. Never give a larger feed than usual just before a hard day's work or drive.

Water frequently but not in large quantity. In the hot days of summer when man desires to drink about every hour, it is cruelty to compel the team to go without from one feed to another. Contrive some way to get them water more frequently, if no other, haul It to the field with you. I want to say with emphasis that a borse never gets too hot to drink a few swallows. Every one knows that the horse that has stood idle for some weeks or even days, can not endure so much exertion as though he had regular daily work, yet few realize the extent to which this is true. Very many horses are overtaxed the first week of spring work. Make it a business to give every horse intended for spring work, some work during the winter. The mistaken kindness that works greatest injury to the horse and lessens his ability for service is that of allowing him to cool off during the day. A horse that has been made to sweat profusely at his work should not be allowed to rest so long at a time that perspiring will cease. Stop often rather than long. The race horse man never lets his charge cool of after he has warmed him up in the morning until after the race is over. If he did he might as well keep out of the race. One other practice of many farmers is to be discouraged, that of turning their horses into the field at night as soon as the pastures start in the spring. Allow him a little grass daily as an appetizer, but do not allow him to gorge himself with it.

An Estimate in Profit.

There are few farmers who rightly estimate the poultry and eggs that are produced on the farm. If they study the matter up, they will find that the hens in the barnyard pay more for the food they consume than almost anything else, in fact, except the indispensable horse, whose value is hard to compute, being so much depended upon, so says a writer in Poultry Tribune. The farmer can keep a hen for less than fifty cents per year. This has been proved time and again, and it is a poor sort of hen that will not produce ten dozen eggs a year. The average price is about ten cents a Allowing the cost of keeping is fifty cents, and that eggs average but ten cents a dozen the year through, it will be seen the income is one hundred per cent on the investment of If he keeps his poultry as he should, the average price will be nearer twenty cents a dozen than ten cents, for he will get eggs in the winter when prices are high.

Protect the Soil.-It is always a loss to leave soil naked through the winter, especially if the surface soil is friable. Unless snow comes as a covering, much of it will be blown into adjoining fields. Often when snow comes it will be wind swept into banks behind fences on its leeward side, and so soon as the banks are formed the snow will be darkened by clouds of fine dust, which is deposited on its surface. This windblown soil is always extremely rich, as is shown by the quicker growth and darker green of the grass that grows up after the bank has melted in spring. Always the land on the leeside of nelds that have been much and long plowed is richer near the fence on the seward side than it is nearer the center of the field. For this reason, when plowing, turn the furrows as much as pessible from the fences towards the enter of the field. Doubtless there is much blowing of surface dirt in summer showers, though it is not so plain to the sight as it is when the dark rim lies on top of a white bank of now. - Ex.

Profit in Beoilers. Miss Nancie Shone, Florence, Col., writes a letter to Mrs. Pinkham from which we quote:

"I had been in poor health for some time, my troubles having been brought on by standing, so my physician said, causing serious womb trouble. I had to give up my work. I was just a bundle of nerves and would have fairting spells at monthly periods. I doctored and took various medicines, but got no relief, and when I wrote to you I could not walk more than four blocks at a three. I followed your advice, tak-
